Unloading kit off the trailer at freight dock

Bob lifting the body on the “body pallet” off the trailer by himself.

Body kit rolls easily on the body pallet with casters. Doors, hatches, and interior panels are tied inside of body kit.

Pushing the kit to be loaded for its long trip from California to So. Carolina.

Rolling up the ramp to find the cargo trailer it will go into.

Once on the dock, we head for the proper trailer.

We had it get lost in Los Angeles, CA. for a week on the freight dock. Imagine something as small as a car and as inconspicuous as a Lamborghini setting on a freight dock for 1 week with no one noticing or wondering about it.

Kit was received in good shape with only one of the casters getting lost from the body pallet.
